

Adam Sulich currently works at the Faculty of Management Wroclaw University of Business and Economics in Poland. He is a member of the Polish Association of Environmental and Natural Resources Economists. Adam studied at the Faculty of Computer Science and Management at Wroclaw University of Science and Technology. Adam Sulich obtained his doctoral degree based on the dissertation titled „The role of green management in balancing the labor market”. He participated in Erasmus+ Exchange to the Faculty of Social Sciences and Solvay Business School, Vrije Universiteit Brussels, Belgium and Faculty of Economics, Technical University of Ostrava Czechia. Adam Sulich actively participated in many national and international conferences, among them in Moscow (Russia), Ghent and Brussel (Belgium), Ostrava and Brno (Czechia), Rhodes (Greece), Vilnius (Lithuania) and Erbil (Iraq). His scientific interests are green jobs, proecological strategies, environmental management, and sustainable development problems in management. More of his publications can be found on page: https://www.researchgate.net/profile/Adam_Sulich